Mercury Adhesives is the choice for the 2008 ETOC

Cumming, Georgia 03/01/08

Mercury Adhesives announced today that they had been selected to be the official adhesive of the Electric Tournament of Champions (ETOC) held during the Weak Signals Expo in Toledo OH April 3-6.

About Mercury Adhesives

Cliff Whitney, Mercury cofounder stated “We are excited to have been selected to be the official and exclusive adhesive of the world famous Electric Tournament of champions (ETOC) 2008 event. Pilots participate in the ETOC by invitation only with the ETOC being known to showcase the best of the best, who compete in a very structured and measured contest.

At the ETOC pilots typically fly aircraft constructed of foam and the USA manufactured Mercury M100F and M1000F foam adhesive products are the choice of many world champion pilots. Mercury’s foam products are different as they are made from a butyl based chemical formula instead of an Ethyl base. Butyl is a more expensive product but provides a stronger and more flexible bond, which is especially good when flying foam aircraft. Mercury is able to offer it’s foam products for the same price as other overseas produced Ethyl products due to the large volume it’s medical division produces. Mercury complements it’s foam friendly products with its MH16 Heptane based accelerator which will work on all Mercury products.”

If you will be at the Toledo show be sure to check out the Mercury Booth as well as the ETOC to see some of the best pilots in the world compete indoors for fame and fortune.
